COLONY CORONATION CELEBRATIONS

Dragon Display: Swimming Gala On Programme

The local Coronation Celebrations will be brought to a conclusion to-day when the International swimming gala at the Victoria Recreation Club will form the main item on a programme which includes racing at Happy Valley, the Coronation dance at the Kowloon Cricket Club and last, but by no means the least, the dragon display on the South China Athletic Association's ground at Caroline Hill. The last named is organised under the auspices of the St. John Ambulance Brigade and the proceeds will be devoted to charity. It is timed to start at 8 p.m.

Yesterday was another red letter day for Hong Kong and despite the fact that it was not an official holiday the crowds that turned out to witness the Chinese processions (day and night) and the Scout and Guide Rally at Happy Valley was as big as on the opening day of the celebrations while at the Hong Kong Club a crowd of 650 members and friends attended the Coronation Ball which turned out to be a great success. His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government, Mr. N. L. Smith, together with Mrs. Smith and Miss Judith Smith attended.

GUIDES' AND SCOUTS' RALLY

THRILLS FOR THOUSANDS OF SPECTATORS

Not since the dawn of Scout and Guide Movements in the history of this Colony has there been a display so spectacular, inspiring and memorable as that presented by members of the Boy Scouts and Girl Guides Associations in connection with the Coronation celebrations.

The display was held at the Hong Kong Football Club Ground, Happy Valley, yesterday afternoon, under the distinguished patronage of His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government, Mr. N. L. Smith, C.M.G., who awarded the "Prince of Wales" Banner for 1936 to First Hong Kong Sea Scout and that for 1936-37 to Third Hong Kong Girl Guides Company.

Over a thousand youths participated in this brilliant display which was a pageant of patriotism, a hive of industry and a riot of colour.

Musical accompaniment was supplied by the Band of the First Battalion The Royal Ulster Rifles, by kind permission of Lt. Col. R. M. Rodwell and Officers, conducted by Bandmaster H. Alfred Hole A.R.C.M. The programme commenced with a melodious selection of Mydleton's "The Rose" and a march "Long Live the King" Hume.

Mr. A. Grad, Assistant Commissioner, was entirely responsible for the production of this display and its success was due in no small measure to his efforts.

There was a capacity audience who, judging by their cheering and applause, certainly enjoyed the show.

PAGEANT OF SCOUTING

The display commenced with a pageant of scouting, illustrating the inception, growth and spread of the Boy Scout and Girl Guide Movements throughout the World. The first group which represented the commencement of the Scout Movement in 1908 was headed by a number of scouts and friends of the movement, illustrating the characters used by the Chief Scout in his book "Scouting for Boys" as examples for scouts to follow. Thus there was St. George, the Patron Saint of England, on his white charger—the cyclist—orderlies of Mafeking who proved, during that memorable siege, what boys could do as explorers, frontiersmen, backwoodsmen and pioneers.

FUSILIER CONVICTED

Attack On Woman

ACCUSED ALLEGES HE WAS DRUGGED

In the early hours of April 24, a man entered the Mongkok Police Station and gave himself up saying that he had just murdered a woman by strangulation. He was in a state of agitation and the front of his coat and trousers were stained with blood.

The man was Fusilier Thomas Morgan, of "B" Company, Royal Welch Fusiliers, Shamshupo Barracks.

As a result of his statement the soldier was taken into custody and was charged before Mr. E. Hmsworth with attempting to strangle a woman, Leung Lok, residing at No. 25, Cheung Lok Street. When he appeared on remand at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday a charge of common assault was substituted owing to insufficient evidence to support the original charge.

Death Of Mr. P. C. Frost

Enquiries at the Kowloon Hospital last evening regarding the condition of Mr. P. C. Frost who sustained a fractured skull as the result of a terrible motor mishap in Waterloo Road on Coronation Day, elicited the information that he succumbed to his injuries at 10.15 p.m. last night.

It will be recalled that on Wednesday a car, in which Mr. Frost was passenger and Mr. W. Schnabel, of the Kowloon Go-downs, was driver, was proceeding along Waterloo Road towards Kowloon City when suddenly the steering gear became faulty. The car skidded, overturned and crashed ed into the wall of the nullah in the middle of the road.

So great was the impact that Mr. Frost was hurled through the roof of the car and landed on his back on the bed of the nullah after a drop of about 10 feet.

Mr. Schnabel sustained slight injuries.

The car was badly damaged.

The late Mr. Frost, who was in the Stores Department of Messrs. Butterfield and Swire, was prominently identified in local sporting circles. He played cricket for the Hong Kong Cricket Club and was also a keen member of the Hong Kong Football Club Rugby Section. Prior to coming to the Colony he played cricket in Shanghai where his chances for Inter-port honours were considered extremely bright until his transfer jolted him of the distinction. He was a fast to medium bowler, a very hard hitter and scored runs rapidly.

The late Mr. Frost was also a member of the Hong Kong Philharmonic Society and of the Hong Kong Volunteer Defence Corps. Only last week he attended the Corps annual supper. He enjoyed a wide circle of friends and was very popular.

DEVELOPMENTS IN AIR-FREIGHT TRANSPORT

Reports to hand from many countries all tell the same story of progress in the dispatch of freight-loads by air. In America, since the beginning of this year, air-freight transport has been beating all previous records. In Canada aerial cargo traffic has been developing rapidly. More loads of fur, for example, have been coming down by air from northern posts. Air traffic to and from mining areas is increasing. Bigger machines of a weight-carrying type are coming into service.

In Australia air-freight conditions are so encouraging that a special organization is being developed in which metal freight-planes will carry urgent loads from big cities to outlying areas.

It was alleged that Morgan, after he had been cautioned at the Police Station related his story.

A squad of European and Chinese detectives went to the scene in search of the body but no trace could be found.

A most important clue was then discovered when a man who was walking along Gascoigne Road in the early hours of that morning, was confronted by a woman covered with blood, who was in a state of collapse. He assisted her home. When the police discovered her she was in a serious condition. She was removed to the Kowloon Hospital from where she was discharged April 28.

Dr. C. S. Luk of the Kowloon Hospital testified that the wounds and bruises on the woman's throat could have been caused by strangulation.

Dr. G. H. Henry who examined Morgan stated that his eyes were bloodshot and pupils small.

Dr. G. I. Shaw also gave evidence of his examination on defendant. Telling the Court the circumstances regarding the incident, the complainant, Leung Lok, said that defendant drank less than a bottle of beer while he was in her company and that Morgan was quite happy when they were walking in King's Park.

ACCUSED STORY
Morgan, giving evidence in his own defence, said that on April 22, he went to the Marcel Cafe and then to the Yee Lok Cafe, Yau-mat. When he left the cafe witness said he was "partially drunk."

Witness then went to a tenement house where he was persuaded by a Chinese, who spoke good English, to have an injection in his left arm. Witness, after the injection, felt strange and his mind became a blank. He left the house early next morning and proceeded back to barracks. He said that he was weak and did not feel like doing anything at all. He went out again that afternoon for two pints of beer.

Coming to the night of April 23, the night prior to the incident, Morgan said that he went to the 9.30 p.m. cinema performance, after which he went to the Yee Lok Cafe where he stayed for a considerable time. He then went to the Sun Sun Hotel where he had his dinner with two girls. Eventually complainant joined him and later they left the hotel and went for a walk in King's Park. He had drunk a little beer before the walk, and he did not feel too well.

Eventually they reached the top in King's Park and here Morgan's mind went completely blank and he did not know what he was doing and attacked complainant for refusing to comply with his request. He reported the incident to the police.

Witness added that he did not return to normal health in Victoria Gaol on April 28. He stated that he had never been charged with drunkenness in the Army.

DEFENCE SUBMISSION

Mr. D. E. Evans, who appeared for the defence, submitted that Morgan had been drugged by the injection. Morgan had no idea of what was going to happen to him. The girl herself could not describe any possible reason for this attack. He further stated that according to medical reports which showed that there was a mark of injection on Morgan's arm, the fact remained that there was the administration of the drug, but no one knew what it was. The only person who could tell the effect and feeling was Morgan himself.

Mr. Evans asked that Morgan be discharged.

After consideration of the evidence His Worship convicted the defendant and imposed a fine of $50.

ROUND-THE-WORLD AIR TRIPS

Recently details were given of a round-the-world air trip which Imperial Airways had arranged for a client, it being explained that the only surface transport link in this globe-encircling programme was a Pacific steamer trip between Manila and Hong Kong.

Now, however, plans have been completed for the regular air operation of this Manila-Hong Kong section. This will mean that it will become possible for long-distance travellers to make complete round-the-world trips by the flying routes.

It may be remembered that in the world itinerary arranged by Imperial Airways, the traveller flew from London to Germany, joining there the Graf-Zeppelin airship for an ocean crossing to South America. Then came aeroplane stages to San Francisco, followed by a Pacific flying-boat voyage to Manila. Here—as already mentioned—it became necessary to change from air-liner to sea-liner for the section, on to Hong Kong. After this an Imperial Airways service was employed in flying from Hong Kong to Penang. Then the main Empire route was flown over to Australia, with a return flight to England via Egypt.

It is stated that passengers in America are already arranging to profit by the establishment of the impending Manila-Hong Kong air link and to book trips completely round the world by air.

After the preliminary test flight on the North Atlantic have been followed by a regular air service on this vital route, it will be possible for long-distance travellers, starting say from London, to fly to America, cross that continent by air to the Pacific seaboard, and then fly over to Hong Kong to effect a connection with Imperial Airways routes that will enable them to complete a world-encircling air journey.

HEART BEATS SENT BY WIRELESS

English Test Heard
In America

A London amateur wireless enthusiast, Mr. L. H. Thomas, of Thornton Heath, has succeeded in transmitting to the United States the sounds of heart beats.

Working with a wave-length of ten metres from his amateur transmitting station G 6 Q B, he accomplished this first step towards "consultation by radio."

The achievement crowns a protracted series of experiments. By the use of a phonostethograph, which records and amplifies heart sounds, the heart beats were heard perfectly in Vermont. Mr. Thomas made contact with W I B Q R in America, four witnesses of which are forwarding a special report to this country.

HOW AIR TRANSPORT AIDS SCIENCE

An expert representing research organisations in the United States is now at work in African forests, collecting specimens of insect life for laboratory purposes.

Packed in special containers, these specimens are carried by native bearers to the nearest station of Imperial Airways. Then they are flown from Africa through to England, and continue their journey to New York by the first available ocean liner.

The speed of long-distance air transport proves extremely valuable in connection with laboratory research. At various times, recently living consignments of locusts and mosquitoes, packed in suitable containers, have been air-borne thousands of miles to be used in the tests scientists are making to combat insect pests.

Rothschild Sale Totals £85,231

Phillip To Art Collecting

In amassing a total of £85,231, the four-day's dispersal of the pictures, works of art, decorative furniture, and the household goods at the late Lord Rothschild's town mansion, 148, Piccadilly, surpassed the most optimistic valuation, writes a Home correspondent.

I know that Sotheby's, who conducted the sale, did not expect it to realise more than £70,000. Mr. Victor Rothschild, to whom the collections passed by inheritance, is quite elated at the result.

Naturally, the dispersal continues to be a lively topic of discussion in art and social circles. The professional dealers who have rich stocks of works of art feel that the sale has given a flip to art-collecting, and the sale will be remembered always for the £17,500 bid for a picture by Pieter De Hooch on the first day.

RELIGION: PERSONAL AND IMPERSONAL

XIII: Archbishop Laud

(BY SCRUTATOR)

Archbishop Laud was in the true lineage of Matthew Parker, he dreaded enthusiasm in any shape or form. His main pre-occupation was ritual and he longed for unity among Protestants. Ritual to him meant discipline, and he believed that it should be enforced as such. Hence the stern and terrible lengths to which he carried his beliefs against the Separatists.

He was a man entirely devoid of the capacity for religious experience, whether Catholic or Protestant, and yet there was in him a strain of reasonableness that some historians would deny him. He was not a monster of iniquity, but a man of very limited experience and almost entirely devoid of imagination.

"No one thing," he writes, "hath made conscientious men more wavering in their own minds or more apt and easy to be drawn aside from the sincerity of the religion professed by the Church of England than the want of uniform and decent order in too many Churches of the Kingdom. It is true that the inward worship of the heart is the great service of God, and no worship is acceptable without it; but the external worship of God in His Church is the great witness to the world that our hearts stand right in that service of God. And a great weakness it is not to see the strength which ceremonies—things weak enough in themselves, God knows—add even to religion."

It will surely be allowed that his ideal was worthy, but his way of achieving it was exceedingly un-Christian and wrong. His advice which Charles acted upon, caused the Puritan Parliament to make common cause with the Separatists, and so ruthless and bloody were his measures that many forsook England altogether.

THE EXILES

On August 15th, 1530, the Mayflower set sail for the new world and landed at Plymouth Rock on December 21st of the same year. Robinson who had been the leader of the exiles while they sojourned in Leyden and who had guided the fortunes of the Separatist Church, did not sail with the Mayflower, but the Church which the exiles founded in the new world was according to the simple forms which Robinson had used. The strictly Puritan element was predominant at first but soon the Separatist element made itself felt. The first definitely constituted Church was founded under the chosen pastorship of an Anglican clergyman, Skelton. It was very simply organized and covenanted.

"We covenant with the Lord and with one another; and do bind ourselves in the presence of God, to walk together in all His ways, according as He is pleased to reveal Himself to us in His blessed word or truth."

These are the words of the covenant, and it is noticeable that they make no reference to doctrine or regulation or order, save the sole assertion of the nature of the headship of the Church.

Being cut off as they were from the Church at home, and gradually realising themselves to be a separate spiritual entity in the universe, they had no other course but to form themselves into a Separatist Congregation. This they did and so powerful was the effect of their religious fellowship that they were soon tackling the whole sphere of their activities in the light and inspiration of it. Education was commenced and schools were founded including Harvard University. With every development the Church's place in the life of the little community became more important until as Dr. Dexter points out the Congregationalism of America became a "Congregationalised Presbyterianism, or a Presbyterianised Congregationalism, which had its roots in one system and its branches in the other."

£3,000 POST FOR A WOMAN

Miss Violet Markham

A woman has gained the rare distinction of being appointed deputy chairman of the Unemployment Assistance Board at a salary of £3,000, states the "Manchester Guardian." She is Miss Violet Markham, one of the first women Parliamentary candidates and an authority on all questions relating to the employment of women.

Her appointment to the post, in succession to Sir Ernest Strömmenger, who is relinquishing it at his own request, was announced from 10, Downing Street. There are five members on the Board, and Miss Markham, who was appointed to it in 1934, is the only woman. She will take over her new duties on April 30.

Miss Markham was deputy director of the women's section of the National Service Department in 1917 and has served on many other bodies. She is chairman of the Central Committee of Women's Employment and a member of the Executive Committee of the National Relief Fund. She has represented the Canadian Government on the Governing Body of the International Labour Office at Geneva, and has been a member of the Industrial Court and the Lord Chancellor's Advisory Committee for Women Justices.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LESSON SERMON

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST.

Subject: Mortals and Immortals.

The subject of the Lesson Sermon in all churches of Christ Scientist to-morrow, May 16, will be: "Mortals and Immortals."

The Golden Text will be: "They that are in the flesh cannot please God. But ye are not in the flesh, but in the Spirit, if so be that the Spirit of God dwell in you. (Romans 8: 8, 9.)"

Among others the following citations from the Bible will be read: "This only would I learn of you, received ye the Spirit by the works of the law, or by the hearing of faith? He therefore that ministereth to you the Spirit, and worketh miracles among you, doeth he it by the works of the law, or by the hearing of faith? Even as Abraham believed God, and it was accounted to him for righteousness. But that no man is justified by the law in the sight of God, it is evident: for, The just shall live by faith. And the law is not of faith: But before faith came, we were kept under the law, shut up unto the faith which should afterwards be revealed. But when the fullness of the time was come, God sent forth his Son, made of a woman, made under the law, to redeem them that were under the law, that we might receive the adoption of sons. And because ye are sons, God hath sent forth the Spirit of his Son into your hearts, crying, Abba, Father." (Gal. 3: 2, 5, 8, 11, 12, 23, 24-6.)

The Lesson Sermon will also include the following passages from the Christian Science Textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "By universal consent, mortal belief has constituted itself a law to bind mortals to sickness, sin, and death. This customary belief is misnamed material law, and the individual who upholds it is mistaken in theory and in practice. The so-called law of mortal mind, conjectural and speculative, is made void by the law of immortal Mind, and false law should be trampled under foot. Mortal belief is a liar from the beginning, not deserving power. It says to mortals, 'You are wretched!' and they think they are so; and nothing can change this state, until the belief changes. Mortal belief says, 'You are happy!' and mortals are so; and no circumstance can alter the situation, until the belief on this subject changes. Human belief says to mortals, 'You are sick!' and this testimony manifests itself on the body as sickness. The Science of Mind needs to be understood. Until it is understood, mortals are more or less deprived of Truth. Human theories are helpless to make man harmonious or immortal, since he is so already according to Christian Science. Our only need is to know this and reduce to practice the real man's divine Principle, Love." (Pages 229, 296 and 490.)

CATHOLIC NEWS AND NOTES

Pentecost Sunday

The feast of Pentecost which is celebrated to-morrow is one of the greatest feasts in the Church's year, for it commemorates the anniversary of the Descent of the Holy Ghost on the apostles after the Ascension of Christ into heaven. The story of the change wrought in the apostles after this event provides one of the most dramatic pages in the New Testament. After Christ's death the apostles were timid and frightened to appear as His followers, and even during the weeks following the Resurrection, gave little proof of restored courage. And when He disappeared into heaven they remained in seclusion. Then the Holy Ghost came, and they went boldly out into the streets of Jerusalem, and St. Peter told the people openly that they had crucified the long-awaited Messiah, and that they should do penance for their mistake, and he baptised. As this was less than two months after the death of Christ the speech of Peter must have been sensational. But the results were even more remarkable, for three thousand people at once declared their readiness to enrol themselves as followers of the Crucified. So began the movement to Christianity that has never ceased since that day.

WHITSUNTIDE

The name Pentecost is not a very attractive one, for it merely means "fiftieth," since Pentecost Sunday is the fiftieth day after Easter. A more popular name is Whit Sunday, so-called because the day before it was one of the regular days for baptism of neophytes in the early Church, and on this Sunday they used to come to church wearing the white garments of the baptismal ceremony. The name "Whitsuntide" was then given to the period around this day, and it has survived.

Whitsuntide as a time of festivity dates from before the Christian age. Among the Jews it was one of the harvest feasts, and it was the end of a seven weeks' period of minor festivities that began with the offering of the wheat sheaf on the second day of Passover. In addition it was observed as the festival commemorating the promulgation of the Ten Commandments on Mount Sinai.

In the Catholic liturgy Whit Sunday, and Whitsuntide in general, is the occasion on which the Church honours the Holy Ghost, the Third Person of the Blessed Trinity. In the Mass of the time there is recited one of the most beautiful of the Church's hymns, the Veni, Sancte Spiritus. An English version of this hymn by Dryden is a masterpiece of verse translation.

St. JOAN OF ARC

The news of disturbances in France last week, when a party of Communists tried to break into a church during the celebration of the feast of St. Joan of Arc, did not come as a surprise to anyone, for the internationalist enthusiasm of the French Left has always been virulent in its hatred of St. Joan of Arc. The career of this saint is certainly one of the strangest in history, and many people have the mistaken idea that she was declared a saint simply in order to glorify France. This view is particularly prevalent among those whose only knowledge of the saint reached them through English history textbooks.

Joan of Arc's political actions had nothing to do either with her sanctity or her canonization. It was because of the remarkably virtuous life which she led even in the strange surroundings in which her life was spent, and especially the religious heroism which she displayed in the terrible disappointments of her life, that won for her the honours of a saint. She is greatly honoured in France by the large majority of the population, and her name is held in great respect by all the unprejudiced.

LA SALLE

The fame of St. John Baptist de la Salle, the founder of the Brothers of the Christian Schools, whose feast occurs to-day, has almost eclipsed that of his remarkable namesake, René-Robert-Cavelier, Sieur de la Salle, the intrepid French explorer of the Mississippi valley, who died just 250 years ago. He started out with the intention of devoting his life to religion, and for that purpose renounced all his estates, so that when he decided that he was not intended for the cloister he found himself without an inheritance. But for this beginning he would never have been an explorer, for it was the timely gift of some land in the New World that sent him to Canada.

It is not easy to separate fact and legend in his life, but it is said that he was the first white man to gaze on the Niagara Falls and to explore the Ohio River. He planted the fleur-de-lis on wide territories of North America and went through hardships that were equalled by few even of the pioneers of exploration. His dreams of a gigantic fur trade were too vast for his age, though the history of the New World would probably have been different if he had received for his plans the support that he sought.

"AIRPLANE" OR
AEROPLANEAttempt To Change
A Name

Once a word has become established in popular use it is difficult to effect a change. Yet the Royal Aeronautical Society has lately introduced the word "airplane" in place of aeroplane.

A similar attempt was made before the war, but although the word "aeroplane" was not then so deeply rooted as it is now the attempt failed; and there is no reason to suppose that any better fate awaits this new attempt.
The fact that "airplane" is the word used in the United States may be regrettable, but perhaps it is a change to absolute uniformity be-desirable. It should be made by America, and not by Great Brittain.

Is the Royal Aeronautical Society willing to change its name to Royal Aeronautical Society, and to call aerodromes "airdromes," aerodynamics "airdynamics," and so on?
The substitution of "airplane" for aeroplane is received coldly by the

NEW REICH AIR FORCECoordination Of Effort

In opening the new German Academy of Aeronautical Research in Berlin General Göring, the Minister-President and Reich Air Minister, said that Germany could win respect for her Air Force in all parts of the world only if she were in the first rank among the nations in technical development.
With the Führer's decision to rearm, he pointed out, the creation of a powerful air arm became a necessity. This task had been entrusted to him, and a great deal had already been accomplished.
Vast new factories had been established in which aeroplanes and accessories were being manufactured, but all these achievements would be inadequate without the complete mastery of modern technique, and this implied scientific research. He had issued orders for a coordination of the efforts of aeronautical scientists for the establishment of new scientific institutes, and for a process of securing cooperation between scientists, industrialists, officials, and so forth, and also for the provision of an adequate supply of pilots for the future. This last consideration he had regarded as so vital that shortly after Herr Hitler came into power he had requested the Reich Minister of Education to cooperate with him and create special facilities for aviation technique at the polytechnics of Berlin, Brunswick and Stuttgart.

"To-day," General Göring said,
"the German aeroplane industry is still largely dependent on imports of foreign raw materials. As to all other great spheres of our national economic life, technical science must be applied to the sphere of aviation in order to ensure the maximum degree of self-sufficiency for the Reich. This is a law which must hold good for German aviation, not merely for four years, but for ever."

On land and sea, General Göring pointed out, German civil communication and German armaments had reached "a really high stage of development," but this could not yet be said of the air.
There were no limits to the possibility of progress in that field.

aeronautical world, which does not wish to take up a pedantic attitude in the matter of terminology. This is no question of a scientific definition however, for everybody knows what is meant by aeroplane.
There was a brief period in the early history of flying when the word "aerodrome" signified, not a field from which flying machines ascended, but the flying machine itself.

Several words of French origin are used in aeronautics, among them fuselage, aileron, and nacelle.
They are regretted by many people, but it is too late to change them for body, winglet, and boat.
After all, there is the precedent of "chassis" in the motoring world.

George Cukor, the brilliant director of "Romeo and Juliet," "David Copperfield" and other notable pictures, was the director of "Camille."

The supporting cast is one of the most distinguished in the history of the screen, with Lionel Barrymore as Duval the elder—Elizabeth Allan—Jesse Ralph—Henry Daniell—Lenore Ulric—Laura Hope Crews—Rex O'Malley—Russell Hardie—E. E. Clive and

CHARGE OF THE LIGHT BRIGADE

The most famous cavalry charge in history is re-enacted in Warner Brothers' "The Charge of the Light Brigade"—starring Errol Flynn and Olivia de Havilland—which comes to the Oriental Theatre on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. Director Michael Curtiz took three weeks to make the sequences. Elaborate preparations were made for the filming of the charge, immortalized by Lord Tennyson in his poem. Twenty expert powder men worked for a week mining the valley with charges of dynamite.

WHEN KNIGHTS WERE BOLD

"When Knights Were Bold," showing at the King's Theatre to-day, provides an ideal starting vehicle for Jack Buchanan.

The story has been adapted from the famous stage success by Charles Marlowe and the addition of musical numbers provides Jack Buchanan with excuses both to sing and dance. Song hits by Sigler, Goodhart and Hoffman and a novel dance routine, arranged by the star himself, which takes place in an ancient baronial hall, are highlights of the film.

Fay Wray plays opposite him and makes a charming Lady Rowena.

The film was directed by Jack Raymond against noble castle exteriors and perfectly reproduced interior settings.

"DRACULA'S DAUGHTER"

Human vampires, throat clutching creatures of the night, come out of the darkness to cast strange shadows on the screen of the Alhambra Theatre in "Dracula's Daughter," the Universal film drama which opens to-day.

This fantastic tale, a sequel to the original "Dracula," follows the adventures of his daughter, who is portrayed by the exotic Gloria Holden. Other featured roles are played by Otto Kruger, Marguerite Churchill, Irving Pichel and Edward Van Sloan.

Dracula's daughter flames to life each night and searches for victims to appease her terrible appetite. To escape from her appalling heritage, the female vampire seeks the aid of the famous psychiatrist, Jeffrey Garth. This incites the jealousy of his sweetheart, but he persists in his efforts to solve the secret of the mysterious vampire.

"Dracula's Daughter" progresses amazingly to a climax that is calculated to make the pulses race with excited awe. The picture was directed by Lambert Hillyer.

"SEA DEVILS"

Abounding with action and suspense that often reach unusual dramatic heights, RKO Radio's "Sea Devils" opens at the Queen's Theatre to-day.

The picture is the first to deal on a large scale with the activities of the U. S. Coast Guard. Two exciting rescues at sea, one of the crew and passengers of a burning liner and one of the personnel of a yacht, blown ashore during a hurricane, and the attempted demolition of a big iceberg off the Newfoundland coast, are among the more spectacular scenes.

Against this colourful background has been painted the romance and rivalry of the human story Victor McLaglen, a hard-bitten Chief Petty Officer of the Coast Guard, has a daughter, Ida Lupino, whom he hopes to see married to one of his shipmates. Donald Woods. Into this scheme of things comes Preston Foster, a roving coast guardman with an eye for feminine beauty, and the plot begins to thicken, building up to one crisis after another with fine dramatic effect.

HONG KONG SINGERS

Successful Broadcast

The Hong Kong Singers consolidated their success of their Coronation Concert at the Peninsula Hotel by giving a repetition of the programme over the air on Thursday night.

It is possible that those hearing "In Honour Of The City" for the first time might find it somewhat of a jumble, as a radio item; but those who were already familiar with it would certainly be able to enjoy it in reminiscence.

The voices of the choir were commendably clear, and the men in particular sang very well indeed. The weak point appeared to be the wind instruments which sounded rather strident at times. Rhythm and tone were good, however, and it was frequently possible to catch the words.

The famous Coronation March by Elgar was very much more effective and the voices of Gladys Shaw rang out sweetly over the air in the strains of Land of Hope and Glory.

SIR SEYMOUR HICKS

Evidence In Film Dispute

AUTHOR OF 60 PLAYS

Sir Seymour Hicks gave evidence recently in a Chancery action concerning the film "Catherine the Great."

He was called on behalf of London Film Productions, Limited, who are defending a copyright case in which damages are claimed by Madame Denise Suzanne Henriette Poznanski (or Savoir), Quai de Passy, Paris, and Mr. Frank Vernon and Mrs. Virginia Vernon, Grosvenor-square, W.

Madame Poznanski is the widow of Alfred Poznanski, generally known as M. Savoir, who wrote the play "La Petite Catherine" which was performed in Paris in 1930.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon, who had the exclusive rights of the play in England and elsewhere adapted it for presentation at the Phoenix Theatre, London, in 1931, and the plaintiffs allege that their copyright had been infringed in the film "Catherine the Great."

London Film Productions deny the allegation. They plead that both film and play could be compiled from historical documents, and that the film was so produced, without reference to the play.

Sir Seymour Hicks was the first witness for the defence. He told the Court that he had been in the theatrical profession all his life; that he had written about 60 plays and had produced about 300.

Sir Seymour said he had read M. Savoir's play and, seen the film, and Sir Patrick Hastings (for the defence) asked if he could see any evidence of the film being taken from the play?

"I cannot see a particle," was the reply.

"BRILLIANT INDECENCY"
Sir Patrick—How would you describe M. Savoir's play as it does not?—Brilliant indecency; I do not see how else you could call it but farce.

Is there an expression in the theatrical world "laugh play"?—There is, but it does not always apply.

Sir Seymour said that that term could be applied to the play.

"I laughed at it tremendously. I thought it extremely funny," he added.

Sir Patrick—In your opinion, in what category would you bring the film?—It is melodrama from the beginning to the end; there is not a funny line in it.

Mr. Justice Crossman—Not an intentionally funny line?—That is what I mean.

Discussing French and English theatre audiences Sir Seymour said: I think that English people remember what they see and French people remember what they hear. French audiences are "quick in the uptake" and they do not laugh in the wrong places.

State Banquet
KING AND QUEEN
RECEIVE 450
GUESTS

London, May 13.
Their Majesties the King and Queen received 450 guests at Buckingham Palace on the occasion of the second State banquet for foreign and Empire representatives attending the Coronation.

The King was wearing the scarlet and gold uniform of Field Marshal and the Queen was a lovely figure in a dress of ivory lace embroidered all over with iridescent paillettes and with a magnificent diamond necklace and tiara as jewels. Their Majesties stood together and shook the hand of each guest as they were announced by the Lord Chamberlain.

Queen Mary, the Duke of Gloucester, the Duke and Duchess of Kent, Princess Royal, Earl Harewood and other members of the Royal family were present as well as all the foreign Royal Coronation guests. A crowd estimated at 60,000 assembled in the precincts of the Palace to watch the arrival of guests and none received a warmer welcome than the Japanese Crown Prince and Princess Chichibu who smiled happily in response.

Drive Through North London

POORER DISTRICTS
SEE THEIR MAJESTIES

London, May 13.
The King and Queen began their Coronation drive through the north of London this afternoon where people were delirious with joy at Their Majesties drive through their area. The drive had been kept a dead secret until almost the last moment when it spread like wildfire. Entering Clerkenwell the Royal car was held up temporarily owing to thousands of people bursting through police cordons and the progress thereafter was very slow for a time. The mapped out route drive covered over fourteen miles and among the streets passed through were some of the most lavishly decorated in the poorer districts of the northern quarters. In one part of a Kentish town their Majesties who constantly waved to the crowds saw hundreds of children assembled for open air Coronation tea parties. The drive lasted two hours.

KING'S MESSAGE OF APPRECIATION

London, May 13.
H. M. the King in a message issued from Buckingham Palace to-night says:—"On the conclusion of the Coronation ceremonies in London the Queen and I wish to express deep gratitude to all those who contributed to their successful accomplishment inside and outside the Abbey. Nothing but praise for the fine bearing and discipline of those representatives of my Naval, Military and Air Forces on duty was a special satisfaction to me. They included so many splendid detachments from overseas whose presence here we all welcome. For all the help so willingly given to ensure the success of the ceremonies the Queen and I tender our heartfelt thanks." The King referring to the long and tiring task of the police remarked that they were assisted as usual by the orderliness and good humour of the crowds.

POLAND AND RUMANIA

Problem Of Etiquette
Solved

Warsaw, May 13.
The knotty problem of etiquette concerning the relations between Poland and Rumania has just been solved by a procedure recalling the proverbial judgment of Solomon. Some time ago it had been decided that the President of Poland, Prof. Moscicki and King Carol of Rumania should exchange visits, to emphasise the friendship between the two countries. However, the question of precedence arose. Should the Polish President or the King of Rumania make the first visit? On the one hand, Prof. Moscicki, as Polish President has been longer in office than King Carol on the throne; on the other hand the question of whether Royal rank takes precedence over Presidential rank is still a debated point.

In this case a very happy solution has been found. The Hereditary Prince Michael was once King of Rumania during the time of his father's exile, and will presumably one day again be King. So Michael will go to Warsaw on May 24 bearing an invitation from King Carol to President Moscicki to pay a State visit to Bucharest, probably on June 7 or 8. King Carol's visit to Poland to take place in autumn during the army manoeuvres.

ITALY TAKES STOCK

Ciano's Statement
In Chamber

Rome, May 13.
That, since Mussolini had taken charge of the Italian Foreign policy, he had stubbornly striven to avert from Europe the danger of being split into two opposing camps, was stated by Count Ciano when reviewing the international situation before the Chamber on Thursday. Italy, Count Ciano continued, had repeatedly called Europe's attention to the requirements of Germany, which must have her place in the reconstruction of Europe. The parallel policy of Fascist Italy and National-Socialist of Belgium, in Austria and the Danube question, as well as in the anti-Communist attitude in the Spanish Civil War, the non-intervention policy and the recognition of Franco. The Rome-Berlin policy was an axis, not a partition wall. It was inspired by their sincere wish for co-operation between all nations.

The experiences of the last few months had shown, that the parallel policy of two large states was highly useful as a factor for safety and peace. Besides, it was the natural centre for all forces striving to save Europe from Communism.

Italy's friendship with Austria had not changed, he added, stating that Italy would conscientiously observe the control measures of the London Non-Intervention Committee. Referring to the Anglo-Italian relations, Count Ciano admitted that "some unforeseen obstacles had at least delayed the rapprochement," but denied that Italy objected to Britain's rearmament. Ciano, especially stressed the good relations of Italy with the Moslem and Arab world, but assured that Italy's Islam policy was not endangering the policy of other states.

STATUE OF KING GEORGE II WRECKED

Dublin, May 13.
The equestrian statue of King George the Second was blown up by a clock mine. The horse was torn from the sockets of the fifteen foot pedestal and hurled twenty-feet away. The King's figure was blown off the horse. One arm was blown away and other simply attached to the body. It is believed the outrage is a reprisal for the Government's banning the Irish Republican Army demonstration on May 11 to protest against the crowning of an English King as King of Ireland.

The second group represented the Girl Guide Movement which was started in 1910, as also was the Sea Scout Section which formed the third Group.

The fourth and fifth groups which greeted the audience, in their own particular manner, with the help of their brothers and sisters from the edges of the arena, were the Wolf Cubs and Brownies. Sections which catered for younger boys and girls, from eight to twelve years of age.

THE EMPIRE

Then there were groups representing a number of countries and part of the Empire—England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales, Hong Kong, Holland, India, Canada, China, Australia, United States, Egypt, Malaya—where Scouting and Guiding flourish.

The demonstration of National Games and pastimes was given by the Third Hong Kong Company, Girl Guides, Third Hong Kong Scouts, combined Fourth Hong Kong and Kowloon Troops, and Eighth Kowloon Scouts, who respectively did the English Country Dances, Scottish Highland Games, Canadian Rope Spinning, and Chinese Games. A roll of drums signalled the end of this item, when each display group went off quickly. The Highland Games marched off, the dancers tripped off, the Chinese Games ran off and the ropes spinned off.

The Recession of 'Pageant' was followed by a display of Highland Dancing by members of the Third Hong Kong (Seaford's) Group.

SCOUTCRAFT

The displays of Bridge Building, Signalling, Chinese Bowling, Backwards Drill, Pioneering, and Trek Cart were respectively enacted by Fourth Kowloon Scouts, First Hong Kong Guides, First Hong Kong Sea Scouts, Sixth Kowloon Guides, First Hong Kong Scouts, and First Kowloon and Fourth Hong Kong Scouts combined. Another Chinese Boxing display was presented by the Eleventh Kowloon Scouts, while tower building for signallers, was performed by Second, Tenth and Thirteenth Hong Kong Groups combined.

The Tumbling display by the First Diocesan Boys' School (Sixth Kowloon) Troop was a pageant of splendour, rivaling anything of this nature that has yet been seen here. It completely won the appreciation of the audience, for it was splendid in every sense of the word, not only in its acrobatic skill but also in its incomparable humour. The success of this was due to the excellent instructions given by the Scoutmaster, Mr. G. S. P. Heywood.

PHYSICAL DISPLAY

Games by the Wolf Cubs and Brownies of Hong Kong and Kowloon were followed by a Physical Display by scouts of various troops after which came the presentation of awards by His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government, who, after presenting the 'Prince of Wales' Banners to the Scout and Guide winners, presented a silver cup to the First Kowloon Girl Guides Company, the runner-up in the 'Prince of Wales' Banner competition. His Excellency also gave a letter to Peter Cook, of the First Hong Kong (Sea Scout) Pack written by Mr. Hampton on behalf of the Chief Scout, Lord Baden-Powell, as follows:—

Dear Peter,
I live a very long way from you, all the same, the news of your plucky deed in October last has come all this way to me.

I am just writing on behalf of the Chief Scout, who is away in India to tell you how glad I am that you had both eyes open and did exactly the right thing. It was a real Good Turn and a credit to your Pack and to Cubs everywhere.

Your sincere friend,
(SD.) HAMPTON
Chief Commissioner.

The above picture gives a splendid idea of the enthusiasm aroused among spectators by the Chinese processions during the Coronation festivities in the Colony.

Then came the final item. The entry of Britannia (Mrs. H. Owen-Hughes) was a procession of colours and a formation of "Wheel" Rally.

BRITANNIA

Britannia majestically entered and stood on the centre of the platform. Colours massed on either side of the platform and butts were placed on the ground. Rovers, Deep Sea Scouts, Guiders and Scouters proceeded to the Centre and formed a ring while two Deep Sea Scouts stood around colours and the platform.

Eight "spokes" formed up outside the arena and each consisted of sixty members, the smaller ones being left out. All Rovers, Deep Sea Scouts, Guiders and Scouters, except one in charge of each "spoke," formed up in one group in readiness to form the Hub. The smaller scouts and guides were divided into eight equal groups, while cubs and brownies got ready in their places and the eight Cubmasters for markers stood in a group just inside the arena.

The eight Cubmasters spaced out thirty-two spaces at angles of forty-five degrees, while the eight spokes, doubled on in single file led by the three physical training spokes.

The eight groups of small scouts and guides then doubled into place, one group was at the outer end of each spoke where they started to form the rim. Cubs and Brownies scampered into place in eight equal sections, and formed the rim.

When the Band started to play the Wheel steadily and slowly revolved once, except the rim of cubs and brownies who stood still, facing outwards. When they returned to their starting place, they all faced outwards again.

After the first chord had been played by the Band, everybody joined in Singing "God Save The King," which concluded the display.

GOVERNMENT HOUSE PRESENTATION

There was a very pleasant (and informal) ceremony at Government House yesterday morning when the Hong Kong Boy Scouts Association presented His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government, Mr. N. L. Smith, C.M.G., with a copy of the Coronation Souvenir Programme.

Four King's Scouts—R. Maycock, 4th Hong Kong (Murray) Troop; Shui Ka Wing, 1st Hong Kong Sea Scout; Stephen Wong, 1st Hong Kong (St. Joseph's) Troop; W. FitzGibbon, 2nd Hong Kong Catholic Troop, formed the delegation which made the presentation, and on the programme was inscribed:—

"Presented with the compliments of the Boy Scouts Association on the occasion of the Coronation of Their Patron His Majesty King George VI to commemorate the Empire-Wide Good Turn of the Boy Scouts in distributing the Official Souvenir Programme."

MISS SETO WAI SHEUNG, M.B.E.

"His Majesty the King has been graciously pleased to approve the appointment of Miss Seto Wai Sheung to be an Honorary Member of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire (Civil Division)."

This was the text of a Communique issued from Government House yesterday.

Miss Seto is well-known for her work with the Society for Protection of Children and social improvements generally.

Colony Coronation Celebrations

UP-COUNTRY VISITORS

To the thousands of visitors from the up-country districts, Coronation Week in Hong Kong must surely stand out as the most colourful period of their simple lives. Thousands of them lined the streets each day the processions were held and so anxious were they to catch a glimpse of everything that was happening that they even stayed out till very late in the night, many of them taking up the same positions time and again, and gazing in wonderment at the millions of coloured lights that formed the night decoration scheme.

AMUSING INCIDENT

There is, of course, the lighter side to the week of festivities but what appeared to the writer as the most amusing was the fact that some fifty of these refreshingly glibless gathered outside the Des Voeux Road entrance of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank, looking with mouths agape, at the revolving doors. Perhaps they will find some little consolation if some kind soul would tell them that they are not the only people who have gazed, awe-struck, at those self-same doors!

Then there were the two old women who, on passing the Bank, immediately turned towards the two lions guarding the entrance to the Clearing House of the Far East, they bowed reverently, to the lions, and "chin-chin" jessed three times! One wonders if they, too, were after an overdraft!

But in all seriousness, these up-country visitors all helped to make Coronation Week in Hong Kong the success it turned out to be. May they be back here again, in 1941, to celebrate with us Hong Kong's Centenary.

DARING ARMED ROBBERY

A daring armed robbery occurred at the Kam Wah Cafe in Canton Road early yesterday morning.

Chan Sau, master of the shop, was sitting behind the counter at about 1.15 a.m., when two men who were armed with a revolver and a knife entered the shop. One of the men banged his hand on the counter, so as to attract Chan's attention, and when he looked up he found himself staring into the face of a revolver. The second man who was holding the knife opened the shop's till and drained it of its contents, while Chan was kept under cover by the first man with the revolver.

After taking silver and bank notes to the value of $100, the robbers backed out of the shop and walked towards Cedar Street via Lalchok Road.

Chan tried to follow them, but he was noticed by the man with the revolver, who threatened him, if he did not return to the shop. Chan obeyed and summoned the police for assistance. The Police are now searching the vicinity in the hopes of finding the robbers.

CORONATION BALL AT HONG KONG CLUB

Six hundred and fifty persons attended the Coronation Ball held at the Hong Kong Club last night. The ballroom was lavishly decorated and the function was a brilliant success.

LATE MRS. PAU CHIU

The funeral of the late Mrs. Pau Chiu, who died at her residence No. 25, Canal Road West, Happy Valley on Wednesday at 1 p.m. after a very short illness, took place at the Protestant Cemetery, Happy Valley, yesterday afternoon, and was attended by many relatives and friends.

Rev. S. Kau Yan Lee, Vice-Chairman of the Chinese Anglican Church Body, Hong Kong, conducted the burial rites.

The deceased lady was predeceased by her husband, the late Mr. Pau Chiu, a prominent local Chinese merchant about three years ago.

The late Mrs. Pau Chiu leaves six sons, one is at present in London, seven daughters and fifteen grandchildren to mourn her death, and to them the deepest sympathy is extended in their sad bereavement.

Apart from family wreaths, several beautiful flowers were laid on the grave.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN COUNCIL

China Problems At Meeting

The Eleventh Biennial meeting of the National Christian Council of China now in session at the New Asia Hotel, Shanghai, is confronted with problems in two fields. First, that of preparation for the meeting of the International Missionary Council scheduled to convene at Hangchow in October 1938; second, with critical problems in its environment in China.

On Friday, May 7, the Council turned its attention towards preparation for the world Christian meeting in Hangchow. Rev. Earle Ballou, a secretary of the National Christian Council, outlined what has been done and has yet to be done along this line. "This meeting should," he said, "reveal to what extent the Christian movement has now become a world-wide movement and also show what the Church can do in relation to society as a demonstration of increased loyalty to Christ."

CHINA DELEGATES

Considerable attention was given to the question of selecting the China delegates to the 1938 meeting. Inasmuch as there are now some 500,000 Protestant Christians, 30,000 Protestant church workers and about 6,000 missionaries in China, he made it evident that selecting the 50 Chinese and 10 missionaries who are to attend the Hangchow meeting is far from a simple task. It is expected that the selection of these delegates will be completed by May 1938.

Mr. Ballou said that the Church is the basic unit in the selection of these 60 delegates. It was, however, pointed out that these delegates should represent the Christian movement in China at large rather than specific units thereof. The Executive Committee of the National Christian Council has the necessary power to insure a sufficiently wide representation in the delegation. In addition Mr. Ballou said that the entertainment of delegates from abroad will involve the raising of about 100,000 dollars.

NEW LIFE MOVEMENT

Col. J. L. Huang, General Secretary of the New Life Movement, was introduced to the Council and invited to sit with the group considering the Church and its Relations, as this group had to deal with relation of the Church to the New Life Movement.

The Chairman of the Council, Rev. Alexander Baxter, pointed out that heretofore the National Christian Council had taken no action with regards to the New Life Movement. He furthermore pointed out that while there had been previous reference to Church co-operation with the New Life Movement, Madame Chiang Kai-shek's "Message to the National Christian Council" as read to the Council on the evening of Thursday, May 6, had been the most definite appeal for such co-operation so far received.

RESOLUTIONS

The Council then took action along the following lines: The resolutions adopted noted that the Council had heard with great interest and sincere appreciation Madame Chiang Kai-shek's "Message." It was noted that at the end of the "Message" it had been stated that "Most important of all in reconstruction is a renewal of spirit and the development of character." This desirable result could only be obtained by co-operation between the New Life Movement and the Churches. It was recommended that Christians in China—individuals as well as Church groups—should co-operate in the programme of the New Life Movement as far as possible.

It was decided also to ask the Executive Committee of the National Christian Council to take such steps as might be necessary for consultation with the Headquarters of the New Life Movement if and when specific aspects of the proposed co-operation needed attention. While there was some discussion as to whether the New Life Movement had any political implication or whether it had any direct relation to the Kuomintang, the resolutions presented were adopted without any opposition when these matters were cleared up by Dr. Y. C. Yang, the chairman of the group.

LAND LAW AND TAXATION

Rev. W. P. Mills of Nanking then presented the report of the group on Relations of the Church to the Government of China as concerns the matter of the Land Law and taxation. He pointed out the distinction of the "white

KOWLOON MURDER

Mr. Chan Lai Chun Dies From Stab Wounds

Mr. Chan Lai Chun, Managing Director of the Sincere Company and a Director of the Tung Wah Hospital, died shortly after he was admitted to the Kowloon Hospital on Thursday night as a result of having been stabbed in the back by an unknown assailant in Prince Edward Road shortly before 10 p.m. The victim was leaving the Shing Yuen Cafe in Prince Edward Road at 9.55 p.m. when an unknown person came up from behind and stabbed him in the back.

Mr. Chan came from the Kowloon district, Kwangtung and became the Managing Director of the Sincere Company Limited last July when he succeeded Mr. Ma Ying Pui following a reorganisation of the Company. Mr. Chan leaves a wife, four sons and a number of daughters to mourn his tragic death.

deeds—deeds made between individuals—and "red deeds"—deeds stamped by the Government office concerned—and urged that steps be taken to see that "white deeds" are turned into "red deeds." He drew attention to the bearing of the land and taxation laws on schools, hospitals and churches. He pointed out that in Hangchow the officials had declined to exempt the Christian schools from taxation because the property was owned by Mission Boards, taxation being, therefore, not on the school as such but on the foreign owners. Mr. Mills pointed out that the issue involved is still under consideration.

Mr. Mills raised the question of the relation of churches to taxation. He said that churches are not mentioned in the rules governing exemption from taxation. That in short, the Church is outside the orbit of the rules for tax reduction. Nevertheless, he said, three pastors in Nanking had, on their own initiative, applied for exemption from taxation for their churches.

Mr. Mills reported, however, that the East Chikang Church Federation had voted against applying for church exemption from taxation on the basis that their freedom would be safer under those circumstances. The issue is a new one requiring careful consideration. This was the first time that any national Christian organization had put the consideration of such an issue on its programme.

RED-GREEN

Minorities are fashionable. All over the post-Versailles world they have popped up like mushrooms. To-day, haunting their grievances and their disabilities, they excite in us both pity and alarm. Experts in agrarian reform, connoisseurs of proportional representation, study them with avidity; nor are the folk-song merchants far behind. Tyranny is often imputed to their rulers, and the intentions of neighbouring dictators are assumed to be strictly dishonourable. Geneva echoes with their woes. It was believed hitherto—erroneously, alas—that Great Britain had escaped the embarrassing responsibility of fostering a minority of the kind referred to. In this country people have always been divided by the shades of their opinions and, lately, of their shirts. But it had not appeared that our shores harboured a section of the community separated from its fellows by that most radical of all divergences, a colour bar. The ominous fact leaked out not long ago in our correspondence columns. Signing himself "Deuteranope" (for such is the forbidding name applied by science to men afflicted in this way), a reader wrote to complain that, being unable to distinguish with certainty between red, green, and brown, he had the greatest difficulty in telling a halfpenny stamp from one three times its value. He claimed that he was far from being alone in this; and his letter was immediately followed by others from fellow-sufferers, enlarging the scope of their grievances and revealing the formidable numerical strength of the Deuteranopes.

There are, it seems, a million of them in this country; and a million Protanopes as well. They are all, or very nearly all, men. (Women, luckily for their sartorial reputations, are virtually immune and can tell red from green at a glance.) But the minority, even without any women in it, is a most disturbing phenomenon. It would not be so bad if the relevant colours were blue and yellow. It would not be so bad if they were anything other than they are. Red and green, as one writer points out, are vital colours to those who drive cars or navigate ships. Why this should be so, nobody can say. Is green (the colour of jealousy, of the jungle, and of many other disagreeable things) any more reassuring than blue? Or red more balefully admonitory than yellow? These theses can hardly be upheld; it is clear that red and green owe their eminence to causes arbitrary or accidental. Such being the case, it is all too easy to imagine the resentment of the Deuteranopes. Other minorities assert their right to their own language, often defacing proclamations written in words which mean nothing to them; and it cannot be doubted that the Deuteranopes, "mutatis mutandis" and when the time is ripe, will do the same. To them it must appear that the regime under which they live goes out of its way to persecute them. Why else does His Majesty's Post Office issue stamps of which two of the commonest denominations are indistinguishable, the NAVY'S NEED OF A STRONGER R.N.R.

First Lord Appeals For More Men

Sir Samuel Hoare (First Lord of the Admiralty), speaking at the annual dinner of the Honourable Company of Master Mariners, at the Mansion House, said he was there as Minister for the Navy of Defence to pay a tribute to the Navy of Supply.

"To-day," he continued, "once more when the clouds around us seem dark and uncertain, the Navy of Defence needs you of the Navy of Supply. We need you in the Abyssinian crisis, and immediately more than a hundred officers of the Royal Naval Reserve came forward to help."

"We have needed you during this difficult period of naval expansion. We needed at once a number of trained executive officers, we had not the time to train them ourselves. At once we were able to find nearly a 100 such officers available in your ranks."

"We shall want more officers to fill their places in the Reserve. I appeal to your for them. And I appeal to you to give us ratings as well."

"The shipping slump of recent years, and the diminution of our seafaring population have inevitably made us ask two questions. Is there now a sufficient Reserve for the needs of the Royal Navy? Will the taking of the Reserve for the Royal Navy immobilise the Merchant Navy?"

"I am not going to attempt to dogmatise on a subject that is much more complicated than it appears. I will only say that as to the second question, the general body of expert opinion takes the view that the Merchant Navy would certainly not be immobilised by the calling up of the R.N.R."

FEWER SEAMEN

"The first question seems to me to lead to another. Is the diminution in the seafaring population going to deprive the Navy of essential reinforcement in time of war? I will say at once, I am not happy about the numbers of the seafaring population."

"No doubt the shipping slump has adversely affected them. If this is so, the shipping recovery ought to expand them. No doubt, also, shore conditions of work have greatly improved. If this is a reason for the falling-off of recruitment for the sea, it shows the great need for improvements at sea keeping pace with conditions on shore."

"But be this as it may, I can assure you that neither the Board of Trade nor the Admiralty is ignoring this vital problem."

"You can rely on the Government to see that the vital problem of effectively manning the Navy and the Merchant Navy receives in this inquiry the urgent attention that it deserves."

one from the other, to a million of His Majesty's subjects? Why equip railway guards with flags which to five Englishmen in every hundred convey absolutely no message at all? How can recruiting hope to prosper when every twentieth recruit is incapable of telling whether the colours to which he is being called are red, white, and blue, or green, white, and blue?

"The situation is delicate and may easily get out of hand. The authorities, lethargic as ever, have as yet offered not the smallest concession to the Deuteranopes, and feeling is running high among a class of people who, since they have as a body no constitutional rights or status, are inevitably driven to underground and terrorist activity. If things go on like this much longer, these unfortunates will be goaded beyond endurance. The day will come when they will see red (or green, of course); and we shall have them, in Marvell's words, "annihilating all that's made." The poet's next line, it will be recalled, has in Deuteranopian circumstances a most sinister ambiguity.

MALAYAN REVIEW

Governor On Advertising

A Three-Fold warning to British traders in Singapore was given by His Excellency the Governor, Sir Shenton Thomas, when he opened the sixth annual British Trade Fair in Singapore.

He stressed the competitive nature of the trade in a free port like Singapore and urged that traders should keep up to date; urged up-to-date and extensive advertising; and called for keener salesmanship.

The 1937 display emphasises the great strides that have been made since the first Trade Fair was held in 1932. That display was prompted by the success of the exhibition which had been held in the new Railway station at Tanjong Pagar in January that year.

Speaking of the need for advertising, the Governor said:—"Another point which I would stress is the need for up-to-date and extensive advertising. A generous provision of advertising literature and catalogues is essential. Where the introduction of a new line will be assisted by the distribution of free samples, let the supply of those samples be liberal. This Fair gives a particularly suitable opportunity for practising this form of advertising."

Malaya's Coronation Contingent, now in England includes representatives of the Malay Regiment. The regiment, commanded and created by Colonel G. McI. S. Bruce, was formed three years ago, and from small beginnings has gone from strength to strength. It has already had its first experience of something akin to active service in the recent Chinese strikes in Malaya. The regiment did excellent work in guarding mines and rubber estates in difficult circumstances.

The Malay Regiment has no difficulty in finding recruits. The picturesque undress uniform melts the Malayan female heart. Moreover, the regiment has the backing of the vernacular Malay Press.

Air Tuition In Penang

"This is an age when, to employ a misquotation which recently appeared in one of the aircraft Journals, 'A young man's fancy, lightly turns to thoughts above.' In this Club we are glad to say our lady members are imbued with the same spirit. I refrain from drawing an analogy from the hand that rocks the cradle. 'To the younger men a Flying Club such as this provides a unique opportunity to train in flying under ideal conditions with expert tuition and at a cost which, thanks to the generous Government subsidies, is lower than in any other part of the British Empire. 'There is so much in the game of flying, not only from the point of view of commercial utility and Empire defence training, or regarded purely as a sport, that it is worth a little sacrifice in other directions to devote time and money to flying training.'"

The above is an extract from the "call to the air" delivered by Mr. H. E. Nixon, President of the Penang Flying Club, when he presided at the annual general meeting of the Club, recently.

It is perhaps of interest to note that Hong Kong once had a Flying Club several years ago but it is now defunct. In its stead there is the Far East Flying Training School which is flourishing at Kai Tak.

'Healthiest City In Asia'

"We in Singapore are in the proud and very fortunate position of being in one of the healthiest cities, if not the healthiest city, in Asia." Thus said Mr. G. Parbury at the meeting of the Municipal Commissioners, in paying tribute to the local health authorities, in a speech on the adjournment. Referring to the annual report of the Health Department which was tabled, Mr. Parbury mentioned that it had entailed a great deal of work. "We take a great pride in our health, and this report, put up by Dr. Hunter and his assistant, is well worth reading, not only by Commissioners but the public generally," said Mr. Parbury. "Health has been very good, but it can be improved. There are two or three heads under which we can improve it. The greatest trouble we have is tuberculosis, and in a lesser degree, typhoid. 'Both are preventable things to a great extent. TB is brought about by overcrowding, and typhoid is brought about by insanitary foods. 'Another thing is that it is the custom of this country to eat from hawkers' barrels, and hawkers' stalls, and that is a thing which will be very difficult to eradicate or even to reduce, but Dr. Hunter is plying away at it, and I want every Commissioner to assure him that we are going to do our very best to support him."

Moneylending Judgment

An important judgment of the full Court of Appeal which sat in Johore Bahru last month was read in the Supreme Court by Mr. Justice L. V. J. Laville. It is of considerable concern to the Chettiar Community and other kinds of moneylenders in general. The case arose out of an application by S.R.M.S. Sittambaram Chettiar and S.M.S. Sinniah Chettiar of Johore Bahru, to sell certain land in Kulai belonging to Mr. Loo Thon Poo and his wife, Madame Puan Ying of Singapore.

The point at issue was whether the interest charged was excessive and also whether the transaction was substantially unfair. The amount involved is in the neighbourhood of $66,000,000.

The following is part of the judgment of their lordships regarding their decision:—"We allow this appeal and set aside the order of the trial judge and declare that all the transactions and accounts whatsoever arising on and from June 18, 1927, between the chargors (appellants) and the chargees (respondents) ought to be re-opened and set aside and that the chargors ought to be relieved from payment of any sums in excess of the sums actually advanced by the chargees to the chargors and interest thereon at the rate of 15 per cent. per annum, simple interest, and if any such excess has been paid by the chargors the chargees ought to repay the sum to the chargors:—"

Officials On Leave

Many Singapore Government officials are going away on long leave very soon. The Colonial Secretary (Mr. A. S. Small) will be proceeding on leave at the end of July. Mr. C. G. Howell (Attorney-General) and Mr. J. A. Hunter (Under-Secretary), are also going on leave. Mr. Howell will be accompanied by his wife, who it is understood has not been in good health of late, and opportunity will be taken of the leave to consult medical authorities abroad. Mr. Howell was formerly Legal Adviser at Kuala Lumpur, where he went from British Guinea about 24 years ago. Mr. Hunter will join his wife at Monte Carlo, and will spend his leave in England and the Continent.

OFFICIAL VISIT ENDING

Chinese Delegates Haye Busy Time

London, May 14.

The official visit of the Chinese delegates closes to-morrow in a blaze of glory. To-night Dr. Kung and Admiral Chen Shao-kuan will attend Mr. Eden's State dinner to the delegates, diplomats and Cabinet members at Downing Street and then they go to the State Ball at Buckingham Palace where Dr. Kung conducts the Duchess of Norfolk in the Royal procession to supper at midnight to-morrow.

Dr. Kung, Admiral Chen with other foreign delegates were received by the King at Buckingham Palace to say farewell.

Numerous entertainments are still remaining. On Sunday Sir Cunliffe Owen lunches with Dr. Kung at his house in Sunningdale. Other arrangements include lunch with the United Committee of Christian Universities, dinner with China Association Committee and Federation of British Industries.

Admiral Chen Shao-kuan attends the naval review as guest of the Admiralty. Dr. Kung probably will not attend.

The financial experts accompanying the delegation are now working hard preparing a statement of the Chinese financial position. No early conclusion must be expected. Reports that China proposed this and that can be emphatically disregarded. Many preliminaries are necessary before anything concrete emerges.

IMPERIAL CONFERENCE BEGINS DISCUSSION

Foreign Affairs And Defence Question

London, May 14. The Imperial Conference opened at 10 a.m. in the Queen Anne Room of St. James' Palace. Mr. J. A. Lyons and other Australians arrived first half an hour before the proceedings began. General Hertzog and other South Africans were also early arrivals. The Indians reached St. James' just on time.

Mr. Stanley Baldwin was elected chairman with acclamation. He moved that greetings be sent to Their Majesties. He pointed out that it was the first time the Imperial Conference met in the Palace and he wished to thank His Majesty for the concession.

The members stood while Mr. Baldwin read a message to Their Majesties praying the reign will be happy and prosperous and under divine providence Their Majesties will long be spared to strengthen the ties of affection and loyalty uniting all the Commonwealth under the Crown.

General Hertzog as representative of the youngest Dominion seconded.

MAIN TOPICS SETTLED

Mr. Baldwin after welcoming the delegates, announced that all are agreed that foreign affairs and defence be the main topics. He hoped the deliberations might help a solution of international problems, suspicions and rivalries dividing the world.

Other questions claiming attention will be constitutional connected with inter-Imperial relations, and technical matters, particularly communications.

CANADA'S GOOD WISHES

Mr. Mackenzie King regretted the non-representation of the Irish Free State, and hoped that a future conference might benefit from the distinctive contribution of the Free States.

He recalled that India was entering another stage of self-government and had Canada's warmest good wishes for the success that may be expected from its own capacities and association with other countries under the King's sovereignty.

He commented that Southern Rhodesia and Burma sent their first ministers as observers, and expressed that a firm economic and enduring peace cannot be achieved without economic appeasement. The countries represented at the Imperial Conference had a definite responsibility to join the other countries willing to co-operate in lessening the barriers to international trade.

AUSTRALIAN READINESS

Mr. J. A. Lyons said that the Dominions, particularly Australia, were taking a widespread interest in foreign policy, realising that no nation can live unto itself. The Dominions' new status involved the obligation of assuming the full burden of nationhood. They must face to the fullest extent their capacity and obligation to provide their own national defence.

Australia was vitally interested in the Pacific and would welcome a regional understanding for a non-aggression pact among Pacific countries conceived in the League spirit. Australia was prepared to collaborate with all other Pacific peoples towards the achievement of such a pact in a spirit of understanding and sympathy.

SOUTH AFRICA'S VIEW

General Hertzog of South Africa said that they must co-ordinate their policies in such a way that it would be as mutually helpful as possible. South Africa was realising how closely she is implicated in the fate of Europe and the world. They heartily appreciated the manner in which the British Government succeeded in steering through the difficult times.

Representatives of India, Burma, Southern Rhodesia and New Zealand also spoke. The conference was then adjourned. —Reuter.

THIRTEEN YEARS OF IMPERIAL AIRWAYS

Milestones In Flying History

Milestones come and go quickly in the history of flying. Yesterday's marvel is commonplace today. To-day's wonder will be a matter of routine to-morrow.

Imperial Airways, in its development of commercial air transport, has just reached another landmark. This is the thirteenth anniversary of the establishment of the Company. It was on March 31st, 1924, that Imperial Airways was incorporated by the merging into one national enterprise of the four then-operating British air transport organisations. To follow the subsequent history of Imperial Airways, during the thirteen years of its existence, is to turn a series of fascinating pages in civil air history.

Vital tasks faced the Company after its inception. It had inherited from the previous organisations a miscellaneous fleet of single-engined and twin-engined machines and one of the first steps taken, in conjunction with aircraft designers, was to evolve a type of three-engined air-liner which—having regard to technical progress at that time—would provide the best possible combination of speed, reliability, and comfort for passengers.

Those three-motored 'Argosies' harked a turning-point in air transport so far as passengers were concerned. The public, travelling in them to Paris and being served with refreshments by a white-coated steward, realized that the days of discomfort in flying were over.

As traffic grew, the 'Argosies' were replaced by the bigger four-motored 'Heracles' and 'Hannibal' aircraft—with saloons so large and luxurious that one traveller referred to them as 'aerial drawing-rooms.' And now to-day, taking shape at Hamble near Southampton, is the first of the fleet of still bigger 'Hugin' class landplanes—great 20-ton monoplanes which, as used on European routes, will provide accommodation for 40 passengers.

With marine aircraft, as well as with landplanes, a similar tale of progress has been told, and Britain now possesses, in the splendid 'winged ships' of the 'Canopus' or 'C' class, a fleet of the fastest, as well as the most luxurious, commercial marine aircraft in the world.

With routes, as with aircraft, the story has been one of consistent progress. Beginning with only 1,700 miles of routes in 1924, the total mileage of the air-lines now operated by Imperial Airways, and its subsidiary and associated companies, has reached a figure of close on 30,000.

The growth of traffic, as told by statistics, provides yet another remarkable story. During the first year's flying by Imperial Airways (1924-25), the traffic ton-miles figure was less than 400,000. But for the latest twelve months' period for which statistics are available it had increased to nearly 5,000,000. Miles flown per annum have increased from approximately 850,000 to more than 4,500,000. Passengers carried have increased in numbers from 11,000 to just on 70,000; while mail loads—as represented by the number of letters air-borne each year—have increased from roughly 20,000 to over 30,000,000.

DIVINE WIND ON WAY HOME

GOLD HOARDS RELEASED

Control Forced To Purchase

London, May 14.

Under pressure of heavy continental disbanding, British and possibly Dutch Controls are forced to buy two-thirds of the £765,000 offered at gold fixing to-day, the rest going to New York on top even of large official purchases which failed to remove the two penny discount of American shipping parity. Since fixing, the continent continues to sell gold.

The recrudescence of nervousness is attributable to yesterday's statement of the Swedish Finance Minister envisaging the possibility of an increased value of krona in terms of sterling in order to offset the rising Swedish price level. This rightly or wrongly is taken as an indication of reversal of the avowed Swedish policy of adherence to the sterling area.

Bullion circles believe that South Africa and Australia are urging the Treasury to adopt some form, even temporary, of stabilisation on gold, but it is considered that the Treasury would be reluctant to follow the advice while sterling is heavily overvalued in terms of dollars.

Meanwhile there are very strong indications that British and American authorities are trying to help gold by buying Russian gold direct, thereby preventing it being dumped in the market.

TEA QUOTA INCREASED

Announcement Comes As Surprise

London, May 14.

"It will enable the public to have a decent tea at a reasonable price" is how a leading tea dealer expressed himself to Reuter regarding the five per cent. increase in the international tea quota.

The announcement, which came rather as a surprise, is generally welcomed by the tea trade where latterly some concern has been apparent regarding the rising price of common teas. It is believed that the International Committee shared this concern and their action should at least halt the upward trend.

Some quarters hold the view that the price of common teas may now fall back slightly, but it is stressed in this connection that a great deal depends on climatic conditions permitting the production of an extra forty million pounds which to-day's announcement entails. —Reuter.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT

London, May 14.

The International Tea Committee announce that as the result of representations setting out the appreciation of the present statistical market position of tea, the Governments of India, Ceylon and Netherlands East Indies have decided that the regulation figure for the year April 1, 1937 to March 31, 1938 be 87½ per cent. of standard export. —Reuter.

SPHERES OF INFLUENCE

Chinese Press Fears Groundless

London, May 14.

Reuter understands that Chinese press apprehensions regarding Mr. Eden's reply to Mr. R. H. Morgan in the Commons on May 5 are entirely groundless. The brevity of ministerial replies in the Commons is necessitated by the rules of the House and an enormous number of questions is limited by time.

The notion that Great Britain in any-wise would lend herself to revival of spheres of influence in China is regarded in well-informed circles as laughable. It would stultify the whole British policy since Mr. Chamberlain's declaration in 1928 and especially in recent years since Sir Frederick Leith-Ross's mission to China.

Furthermore it is pointed out that the British people would never tolerate such a reversal of British attitude in China.

It is learned that while Great Britain would cordially welcome

EXPLOSION ON BRITISH DESTROYER

Three Killed: 12 Wounded

Valencia, May 13.

Three were killed and twelve wounded aboard H.M.S. Hunter, when an explosion took place at her starboard waterline to-day. Messages received at the British Embassy suggest that the cause of the explosion was outside the ship.

H.M.S. Hunter, a new destroyer, was on patrol duty under instructions from the International Non-Intervention Committee, guarding the south coast of Spain against the illicit entry of arms and volunteers. She was five miles off Almeria when the explosion occurred.

The Spanish Government destroyer Lazaga assisted the Hunter, towing her towards Almeria. The destroyers Hardy and Hyperion hurried to the scene to stand by.

Later, the Spanish Government battleship, Jaime Primo, came on the scene, took the Hunter in tow and brought her to Almeria. The officers and crew of the Spanish warship showed the British sailors every kindness.

It is stated that the explosion occurred externally, but there have been no further details made public as to the cause.

H.M.C. Hyperion has already arrived on the scene of the tragedy.

The Admiral commanding the Third Cruiser Squadron is expected to arrive to-morrow morning at Almeria, from Barcelona, in the cruiser Arethusa. —Reuter.

Gibraltar, May 13.

The Flotilla Leader, H.M.S. Hardy, is travelling at full speed to Almeria from this base.

It is understood she will bring back the victims of the explosion which damaged H.M.S. Hunter so seriously. —Reuter.

MARKS IN HULL

Paris, May 14.

The damage to H.M.S. Hunter was not caused by a mine according to the Valencia correspondent of Havas.

It is stated that the hull shows marks where some projectile went right through, entering on one side and leaving at the other. —Reuter.

VALENCIA REPORT

Valencia, May 14.

The report of the captain of the Jaime Primo, which went to the rescue of H.M.S. Hunter, has been issued.

The Ministry of Marine states the explosion in the Hunter occurred when she was less than four miles from port. The captain immediately ordered several Spanish warships to assist the destroyer, including the Jaime Primo, the destroyer Lazaga, and a number of armed fishing boats.

The Hunter sank rapidly forward immediately after the explosion. A Spanish launch picked up 14 of the crew.

Five of the dead are known to have perished when they were trapped in the engine-room.

British and Spanish officials will inspect the hull to-day to determine the cause of the explosion. —Reuter.

N.W. FRONTIER FIGHTING

British Soldier Killed

Simla, May 13.

One Indian officer, two Indian other ranks were killed and one British soldier, three Indian officers and five Indian other ranks were wounded in North-West frontier fighting on May 11 and 12. The First Brigade supported by scouts left the camp on different routes and converged in a pincer movement on the plain. The Wazirs, caught unawares, offered little resistance and afforded excellent targets for aircraft which co-operated. Enemy casualties are believed to be considerable. —Reuter's Bulletin Service.

NERVE STRAIN OF LONDON

Lord Horder's Rules For Health

Lord Horder emphasised the nervous strain caused to Londoners by the lack of town-planning when opening the Satellite Town Exhibition at the Housing Centre, Suffolk-street, London, recently. "The lack of planning which has led to this monstrous London of to-day," he said "fills more than half the consulting rooms of Harley-street with overstrained, never-racked patients."

Lord Horder spoke of girls whose nerves were strained to breaking point by the daily rush to and from work, with long unnecessary journeys spent "strap-hanging." "It is appalling to think of it," he added, "but it is, I am assured, a fact that on some of the London Passenger Transport Board's lines at the peak periods 12,000 persons are travelling, while there is seating accommodation for only 4,000. The strain on the young is very great, and the strain on the aged is intolerable."

MORE HEALTH RULES

Three distinct factors—people, their homes and their workplaces—were inextricably bound together. When that was grasped we could begin to plan and to create new towns providing the opportunities for a full, healthy and abundant life for all who lived in them.

Lord Horder offered five "more rules for health. They were:

Simple and fresh food is better than cooked food.
Exercise is better than exercises.
Fresh air is better than conditioned air.
Sunlight is better than mercury lamp; and Elimination of needless noise is better than sound-proof rooms.

Lord Horder added that had we had 50 Letchworths and 50 Welwyns, instead of only two thoroughly planned towns in Great Britain, it was safe to say that we should not be a C. 3 nation to-day. Viscountess Rhonda said it seemed to her that during the past 10 years or more half the industries in Britain had been tumbling helter-skelter into the south-east corner of England, and especially into the London area. Huge new blocks of flats containing thousands of tiny rooms without fireplaces, "and as noisy as Dante's Inferno," were springing up like gigantic mushrooms all over Central London.

PRAGUE CHAMBER INCIDENT

Prague, May 13.

A shot was fired from the public gallery of the Czechoslovakian Parliament at President Malypetr by a man named Sebeck, a miller's assistant in the Hungarian-Bradisch Province Moravia, during Thursday's session. The bullet hit the coat of an Agrarian deputy, but injured nobody. Before the shooting, Sebeck shouted: "All Deputies are swindlers and scoundrels!" On his arrest, Sebeck declared he wanted to protest against cartels and monopolies. —Transoceanic News Service.

MILITARY MIGHT OF GERMANY

Hitler Reviews New Forces

Herr Hitler was 48 on April 21. Once again his birthday was made the occasion for an impressive display of Germany's arms might.

As he did last year, Herr Hitler took the salute at a march past in Berlin of military, naval and air force detachments in which 14,550 officers and men, 1,500 horses and 950 mechanised units of various type took part.

Although the parade failed to reveal any novelties it was obvious that the general standard of equipment had improved greatly since last year.

The 240 tanks on view were, however, of the small type, with a crew of two, and mounting two machine-guns—a type which is understood to have revealed certain defects in Spain. It is believed that heavier tanks are now being manufactured.

Herr Hitler was supported at the saluting base by Field-Marshal von Blomberg, the War Minister, and by the Commanders-in-Chief of the three Services, Gen. von Fritsch, Admiral Raeder and Gen. Goering. His appearance was greeted with loud shouts from the crowd of "Congratulations, Fuehrer." Herr Hitler answered with a salute and a cheerful smile.

In specially erected stands 8,000 guests of honour, including many representatives of the old Imperial Army, in spiked helmets and picturesque uniforms, were accommodated. The British Embassy was represented by Mr. Ogilvie Forbes, the Chargé d'Affaires, Col. F. Elliot, Hotblack, the Military Attaché, and Major R. A. Hay, Assistant Military Attaché.

The parade through the Brandenburger Gate was led by Gen. von Witzleben, the general commanding the Third Army Corps, mounted on a charger. Behind came detachments provided by the army which, as the senior service in Germany, led the way.

Cavalry, even in plain field grey uniforms, still raises more popular enthusiasm than the grim and efficient mechanised units. The loudest cheer of all was reserved for the kettle drummer of the 9th Cavalry Regiment, a man with huge turned-up moustaches like those of the ex-Kaiser, who brandishing his drum sticks and guiding his horse with his spurs

THOUSANDS IN U.S. IDLE

Steel Workers Give Trouble

Detroit, May 13.

About 15,500 employees of the General Motors Corporation are idle owing to sporadic strikes in Cleveland, Saginaw, Mich., and Janesville, Wis. Of these nearly 7,000 are involved in a sit-down strike in a Cleveland plant.

Officials of the United Automobile Workers' Union declare the strike has been called as a protest against the needless laying off of men and the unfair speed-up in production.

Meanwhile, the steel strikers are giving trouble. At Pittsburgh police had to use tear gas against a rioting crowd of pickets of the Jones, Laughlin Steel Corporation which refused to conform with the demands of its employees for recognition of bargaining powers of the Committee of Industrial Organisation.

An executive committee of the Union has been called for Saturday to consider the extension of the strike to two other big independent concerns, the Republic Corporation and the Sheet and Tube Company, which refused to sign a collective bargaining agreement with the Union. If these workers are called out nearly 400,000 will be involved by the strike. —Reuter.

THRILL FOR BALL FANS AT CAROLINE HILL THIS AFTERNOON

Hong Kong Baseball Club To Meet Chinese Nine

BY "BLEACHER"

Persistent rumours are current that there's a big wager up for the game scheduled for this afternoon at two o'clock between the Overseas Chinese and the Hong Kong Baseball Club. Whether or not the rumour is founded, there is no doubting the fact that considerable interest has been aroused in this match.

If the old bromide, "Perseverance wins!" is any criterion, the Hong Kong Baseball Club nine should romp home the victors; the team has been practising diligently ever since the season began.

The battery of the Club will be Ralph McCall and Dave Walker. The latter is a veteran catcher of the old Canadians, while McCall is fresh from college triumphs and has plenty of curves in the bag, besides a speed ball that really smokes.

The infield is composed of Ernie Hearther, another veteran, who will hold down first base again, with Tommy Thomson at second, and Jack Smedley at third. Howard McCall, younger brother of Ralph, has shown considerable promise and will be seen at short.

There will be five from which to choose for the out-field: Bill Muir, hard-hitting captain of last year's Canadians; "Doc" Molthan, who froze some difficult flies in the first game against the Nippons; Homer Divett, local cricket interpreter; Wes Leding, a newcomer to the Colony; and Len Altree.

Caroline Hill, scene of this afternoon's clash, has a grandstand which can accommodate the large crowd expected there, and spectators can be assured of an hour and a half of honest-to-goodness baseball.

Put Ching Academy, of Canton, will be playing a double header to-morrow. The first game will be with the Japanese, followed by a game with the Volunteers.

The lads from Canton have augmented their team by the inclusion of several sailors from the U. S. S. Mindanao, and they should be a formidable nine.

ASSISTANT'S GREAT GOLF VICTORY

King Wins £2,000 Tournament

AN EXCITING RECORD ROUND

The £2,000 Golf Tournament promoted by the "Daily Mail" resulted in yet another triumph for an assistant, S. L. King, of Knole Park, Sevenoaks, winning in circumstances almost worthy of that overworked word, dramatic, writes a Home correspondent.

He started the day on the 147 mark, four shots behind the leaders, T. H. Cotton and another assistant, M. Faulkner. In front of him were players of established reputation and ability, Lacey, Compton, Adams and C. A. Whitcombe. You can have no tournament without one of the great brotherhood in the frame of eddying crowds and flying runners.

When the morning's play came to its exciting end, King had holed the course under pleasant sunshine in 87. Other stirring happenings had so altered the face of the scoreboard that late arrivals, swelling the multitude, rubbed their eyes and made incisive comments of surprise. Cotton, with 73 and an aggregate of 215, was still a great menace, Compton, 216, and Lacey 218, were still in pursuit, but Faulkner, Adams, and others who had been drawn with pleasure in overnight sweepstakes failed to outwit adversity.

King had blazed a trail which none could follow. In the afternoon, with 69, he left his followers behind for good. Last season ended with Dai Rees, and assistant, beating the seniors in the unofficial match play championship. King has started this season with a momentous victory, which must take him into the Ryder Cup team. Many considered him fitted for it last year.

Henry Cotton, with 72 plus 72 and a total of 287, followed him home. C. A. Whitcombe and Mahon, both returning fourth rounds of 69, shared third place with Compton and Lacey, two shots behind them.

KING'S GREAT ROUND

King went out with another assistant, H. B. Rhodes, who played a delightful golf all day, 71 and 73. He showed himself in every way an ideal partner. King's figure were 3, 4, 5, 3, 3, 4, 4, 3, equals 32 out; 4, 4, 3, 3, 4, 5, 4, 3, 5, equals 35 home. A long putt at the first hole started the day of glory, and a mashie-niblick shot finished dead at the fourth. The magic putter worked from 5 yards at the eighth and from six yards at the ninth, where a bunkered tee-shot suggested trouble.

There was a glorious spoon shot dead at the twelfth, another good putt following a bunker recovery at the sixteenth, a six yard putt down at the 17th, then a hooked tee shot at the last one, where the crack of a drive on an adjacent feeling ground startled King as he swung. It was enthralling golf to watch, with its length, threats of troubles, and great recoveries.

It was very different from the solemn grandeur of Henry Cotton, who was partnered with the mercurial and incomparable George Duncan, whose 74 and 75 were compiled with much of his old rapidity and fire. I wondered, as he smilingly acknowledged the generous applause which greeted his holing of a chip shot at the ninth, whether some memories of the great days flashed through the ever active brain.

COTTON'S MISSED PUTTS.

The first little shadow across Cotton's path was an eminently holeable putt missed at the third. That shadow was to grow steadily throughout the day and spoil his great chance. He was out in 35 and home in 37. He crashed a grand brassie shot home against the brisk wind at the 10th, only to fail with a second putt of four feet. He holed a six-footer for 3 at the eleventh, only to take four putts, the last one of inches, with a muddy ball at the 12th. That round cost him 39 putts, and the lead.

U.S. BASEBALL RESULTS

Pittsburgh Lose To New York

New York, May 13.
It took Carl Hubbell, New York's ace pitcher, to stop the Pittsburgh Pirates in their march at the top of the National League. They were halted abruptly, in spite of Vaughan's two home runs, though they are still comfortably secure at the head of the League table and can afford to drop a game now and then.

Hubbell broke all existing pitching records by winning his twenty-first successive league game in a two-year period.

New York hit thirteen, Bartell claiming a homer, and scored five runs. Pittsburgh had six hits, two of them homers, produced only two counters.

Cincinnati went down before the Dodgers; Brooklyn won six to four, though each had eight hits.

Chicago and Boston battled for twelve innings before the Cubs slipped in two runs to break the tie. Cubs scored eight to the Bruins' six, though they were out-hit, thirteen to ten.

St. Louis beat Philadelphia five to four with seven hits to eight. Cards punted by the Phillies four errors. J. Moore hit a homer.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

New York Yankees beat St. Louis Browns four to two. Vosmik's homer didn't help the losers. Browns could only hit eight and New York scouted around the bases on twelve.

Washington scored a ten-run to two victory over Chicago, with fourteen hits and a homer by Hill. The White Sox hit eight. Each had two errors.

Gill of Detroit pitched a shut-out game against Boston, allowing only four hits. Detroit scored four runs on five hits.

The Philadelphia-Cleveland game was called on account of rain.—Heuter.

FRANCE HONOURS ATLANTIC AIRMAN

A street in Paris—the Rue Jean Mermoz—has been named after the famous French airman who did so much to create the trans-atlantic air service between France and South America. Jean Mermoz made the double South Atlantic crossing twenty-three times. On his twenty-fourth flight he vanished. No trace was ever found of him and his four companions in the aeroplane Southern Cross.

The State has issued two postage stamps—one dark green, value 30 centimes, showing Mermoz in his plane against a map of the Atlantic, and another purple, value 3 francs, with the airman's head against two giant wings.

R.A.F. OFFICERS MARRY YOUNG

No Ban, But No Approval Given

Young officers of subaltern rank in the R.A.F. are now marrying at an earlier age. Before the war it was exceptional to marry before the rank of captain, or its equivalent, had been attained.

Cases have occurred in the Air Force of officers getting married immediately after leaving the Cadet College. On leaving the Cadet College they hold the rank of Pilot Officer, and in that rank a few marriages are made. Their amount to about 2 per cent. of the total number.

A cadet leaves the College at about 20 or 21 years of age, and after serving as a Pilot Officer for a year or so, with pay of 11s a day, rising to 14s 6d, becomes a Flying Officer at 18s 2d a day. At this stage he qualifies for a marriage allowance, bringing his total income from the service to £520 2s 6d a year. After two years the pay rises to £1 0s 10d a day. In from four to six years he would be promoted to Flight-Lt., the equivalent of Captain in the Army, with pay of £21, 3s. 6d a day. Promotion to the rank of Squadron-Leader is usually between the ages of 29 and 33.

There is no rule against very youthful officers of the R.A.F. getting married, but it is not approved if it involves, as it usually does, sacrifice of the corporate life of a squadron at a period when this is important to the rising officer.

TROOPS HANDED MEDALS

Buckingham Palace Ceremony

London, May 14.
The King and Queen with the Dukes of Gloucester and Kent personally handed the Coronation medals to 1,200 Dominion and Colonial troops in the Garden of Buckingham Palace. The men took up a position opposite the terrace of the Gardens on which the King and members of the Royal Family stood.

The Prime Ministers of the Dominions and representatives of India and the Colonies were present at the ceremony. The King wore the undress uniform of Field Marshal. After the officers had received the medals from the King at the terrace His Majesty walked through the ranks of the men on the lawn and pinned the medal on them. The King returned to the terrace and took the salute, as the men marched past.
The ceremony was watched by thousands gathered round the Palace.

IRELAND TO SEVER ANOTHER LINK

Dublin, May 13.
Speaking in the Dail to-day,
where the new Constitution Bill was given second reading 60 to 43,
Mr. Eamon De Valera said the President's powers at present would be used for the purpose of manipulating internal affairs, but added that later they might be used in external affairs, if and when the people decided to abolish the Act of December, last year, which recognises the King in external relations.

"The people, he said, would be asked to decide that matter apart from the new constitution."

MR. P. GRANT

Leaves For Home To-day

PIONEER IN COLONY MOTORING

Mr. Peter Grant, Assistant Superintendent of Police, accompanied by Mrs. Grant, is leaving for Home to-day aboard the P. & O. liner Ranpura on retirement from the Hong Kong Police Force.
Mr. and Mrs. Grant plan to visit the Highland Games in the North of Scotland prior to making their future home in England.

Much has already been written of Mr. Grant's work in the Force, and, therefore, a few glimpses in his private life would not be out of place.

Mr. Grant, it will be interesting to note, was one of the original members of the Hong Kong Automobile Association. In fact, he was a pioneer in motoring in the Colony and enjoys the unique distinction of being the first, with Mr. George Watt, formerly of the Revenue Department, to travel on the new motor road round the Territories. They made the journey on a motor cycle which they had to carry part of the way!

Then, many years ago, Mr.
Grant, in company with Chief Inspector A. K. Taylor, of the Sanitary Department (who was formerly in the Police), Mr. Watt and a friend, walked a distance of 32 miles from the Kowloon Star Ferry to Sheung Shui returning by train. They carried oatmeal and cream for food, but Mr. Grant's menu for the day was only fruit.
Mr. Grant's number when he joined the Force as P.C. was A93 and Mr. Taylor was A94. The Chinese used to call them "brothers" and even to this day both are known by their numbers, in spite of the fact that Mr. Taylor is no more connected with the Force. Mr. Grant and Mr. Taylor were also together in the Fire Brigade.

Behind the scenes during his stay in the Colony of over 30 odd years, Mr. Grant, unknown to many, has been a princely leader in the cause of charity from which field he will be sadly missed by many who have enjoyed the shelter of his kindness and unfailing help at all times.
